

My Autobiography

Hi, I'm King Byron A. Maala, 15 years old, born and raised in General Trias City, Cavite. I've lived here my whole life, same house, same neighborhood. If there's one thing you need to know about me, it's that I love basketball. Not just watching it, but playing it every chance I get it. Rain or shine, you'll probably find me at the court with my friends, doing layups, trying out moves I saw on YouTube, or pretending I'm the next Stephen Curry. I may not be the tallest or the strongest, but I've got heart, and that's what matters most.

I'm currently in senior high school at Santiago Integrated National High School. I'm not the top of the class, but I always try my best.

At home, I live with my parents and my elder sister and younger brother. Life's not perfect, but we make it work. My father used to play basketball too, so he's my number one supporter (and critic). He reminds me to stay humble, stay focused.

I dream of becoming a policeman someday. I want to protect people, especially the ones who can't protect themselves. I want to serve my community and make our city safer. I know being a policeman is not easy, it takes courage, discipline, and honesty. But I'm ready to work hard to earn that badge one day.
